At the time of the 1901 census Neville and his parents Victor John and Bertha J Black were residing with Neville’s grandfather, a 49 year old Widower who was a Furniture Porter and Head of the house, living at 8 Church Street, Dover, Kent. Neville is buried in the Petsamo Evangelic-Lutheran Cemetery, Russian Federation, and is also commemorated by a Special Memorial in Murmansk New British Cemetery in the Russian Federation which was made in 1930. Forty burials were moved in from the Old British Cemetery that had been used by the No 86 General Hospital during 1918 and 1919. The special memorials commemorate officers and men such as Neville who are known to have been buried in cemeteries elsewhere in the Murman area, but who were not moved into the new cemetery in 1930 or subsequently. Petsamo where Neville is buried was in Finland prior to the Second World War, and became Soviet territory as the direct result of what Finland calls the Continuation War.

BOAKES, THOMAS. Private, G/14032.

B.A. Scholar of Jesus College, Cambridge, and the former Captain of Cambridge University Shooting Eight. MIC entry shows service in both of the above regiments.
Geoffrey’s father was a Director of the Dover Corn Merchants Bradley Brothers, who for several years were primarily located at the Custom House Quay and Strand Street Dover, Kent. It is thought that the company was later merged to become the much larger Bradley, Taylor & Youngman, probably resultant of competition from the giant international milling and animal feed consortions.

BRIGHTMORE, H. There are two possible casualties (both army) commemorated by the CWGC neither of which shows family details, a SDGW check also proved fruitless re da Dover connection, and only 14 casualties are recorded with the surname by both the CWGC and SDGW which on this occasion match, but that also show no obvious link to the casualty who is named on the war memorial. Various other checking was undertaken i.e. variants of the surname but again with nil comprehensive results. The casualty is also commemorated on the civic war memorial, Dover, Kent.
BROMLEY, CECIL PERCY JOHN. Serjeant (Pilot), 1312.
7 Squadron, Royal Flying Corps.
Son of Percy R. and A. A. Bromley of 85, High Street, Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Arras Flying Services Memorial, Pas de Calais, France, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent. On a day when the weather was unfavorable for observations, reconnaissance and photography, Cecil and his Observer Second Lieutenant G. H. Wood were the crew of a Voisin aircraft when they became embroiled in aerial combat with Vizefeldwebel (Sergeant Major) Christian Kress whilst flying above Chaulnes, Somme, France. After several exchanges of gunfire combined with maneuvers by both pilots eventually Vizefeldwebel Kress got the upper hand and destroyed the Voisin, which came down to the west of the allied lines. Second Lieutenant G. H. Wood although wounded survived the aircrafts crash landing and actually survived the Great War. When Christian Kress brought down Cecil’s Voisin it was his forth and last victory, because only eight days later he was killed in aerial combat above Nesle, Somme, France, it is thought that his opponent was the most decorated and successful French ‘ace’ Capitaine Georges Marie Ludovic Jules Guynemer. On the day that Cecil lost his life a German pilot who was destined to become an ‘ace’ was wounded, but who will avways be remembered in history not for his undoubted skill and bravery as a pilot during the Great War, but for starkly different reasons, he being Leutnant (Lieutenant) Hermann Wilhelm Göring of Jagdstaffel 5.

Died 30 September 1918.
Born, enlisted and resided Dover, Kent.

As the prefix to John’s regimental number was indicative of him having been a regular member of the local infantry regiment, The Buffs (East Kent Regiment), awarded the Military Medal (whilst a Corporal), and born, enlisted and resided Dover, Kent, he is numbered amongst those not commemorated on the Dover, Kent civic war memorial.

Son of Thomas and Ann E. Casey of 3, Palmerstone Terrace, Maison Dieu Road, Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Menin Gate, (Ypres) Ieper, West-Vlaanderen, Belgium. Panel 12, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
Resulting from the build up of corrosion and verdigris on the panels of the St. Mary the Virgin war memorial over the years, has made it virtually impossible to distinguish for certain the initials of ‘another’ CASEY commemorated. But it appears that Harold is in fact the ‘other’ CASEY casualty having been commemorated twice on the same war memorial, whilst not unique in Kent or elsewhere, it is nonetheless unusual.

CATHCART, EDWARD WALTER. Lance Corporal, 3/8482.
1st Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment.
Died 13 April 1915. Aged 22.

He continued his studies when the school relocated to Guston, Dover, Kent where he also subsequently joined the teaching staff. SDGW shows Edward’s surname as Catheart, but his MIC entry and all other data checked is the same as shown above via the CWGC.
For excellent comprehensive data appertaining to the above establishment check out the website http://www.achart.ca/york/index.html

Husband of Alice Jenny Comper of 49, Hambro Road, Streatham, London.
Commemorated on the Chatham Naval Memorial. Panel 1, and on St. Mary’s the civic memorial Dover, Kent.
Ernest’s date of death is like many deaths at sea, it being a presumed date. Two of H.M. Trawlers, they being H.M.Trawler Drumoak (342) and H.M. Trawler Princess Beatrice (287) were presumed to have been mined and lost in a British minefield off West Hinder around 5 October 1914. Also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent, Walter is also commemorated on King’s Lynn, Norfolk civic war memorial which is situated in Blackfriars Gardens adjacent to the town Public Library. There are 569 names of the fallen of the Great War inscribed on it, but only 19 from the Second World War, when viewing same we were struck how much like Dover it was, with the substantial numbers of the latter conflict not commemorated. Page 50 of the ‘Norfolk Roll of Honour 1914-18’ which was a book published by the Norfolk News Company in 1920, also commemorates Walter by name. The same company was also the publisher of the ‘Eastern Daily Press’ newspaper which reported the local Norfolk war casualties throughout the Great War years. A total of 503 residents from the town of King’s Lynn are commemorated in the book. Upon learning that we were in the process of transcribing the Dover war memorial, in June 2005 very kindly a military historian and researcher residing in Norfolk, who we have helped (or tried to) in the past with ‘Kent’ related military queries, sent us the above information about Walter in addition to which he informed us that Walter’s father was a well known Mason/Diver. Born in 1863 at Maughold, Isle of Man, Walter senior upon leaving school became a Stone Masons Apprentice, following in his father’s footsteps (who was also named Walter) and a native of Maughold. With the passage of time more and more work was undertaken around the country on seawall construction and repairs, during which time several moves were made by the family resultant of the above work. Prior to moving to King’s Lynn the Corteen family had resided at Folkestone and Dover. Checking the 1901 census has shown that our informant was right about Dover as they resided in Ethelbert Road, Folkestone, unfortunately no data has been accessed regarding their Dover address.

Gazetted a Second Lieutenant in The Buffs (East Kent Regiment) on 16 August 1905 and promoted to Lieutenant on 27 March 1909. On the first day of the Great War Christopher was promoted to Captain. Prior to the Great War he had served with his regiment with the 2nd Battalion in South Africa from 1901 to 1909, and afterwards in Hong Kong. Between 1911 and the start of the Great War Christopher was an officer on the permanent staff at The Buffs (East Kent Regiment), Regimental Depot, Canterbury, Kent. With the formation of the regiment's 6th Battalion in August 1914, Christopher was given command of a double company on the battalion, and when the battalion sailed for France he was the commander of “C” Company. Whilst in France, Christopher was recommended to join the Headquarters Staff of the 2nd Army Corps, but it was not whilst holding down a “staff job” that he fell in battle on Wednesday 13 October 1915, during the fight for the Quarries at Hulluch by the 6th Battalion, The Buffs (East Kent Regiment). Christopher had only gone about 50 yards over the trench parapet when he and the soldiers he was leading were enfiladed by German machine gun fire, and along with all the others he fell riddled with bullets. A brother officer of his wrote “The 6th Battn, has ceased to exist, and dear Kit has gone with them at the head of his men. The whole thing is too appalling, and one can as yet hardly realize events. A, C and D Companies were detailed to attack and take a certain position, and were caught on three sides by machine guns and rifle fire and were completely wiped out. The men went over the parapet magnificently without a falter, and some got to the German wire 300 yards away. Poor Kit was shot through the head after going about 50 yards. Our casualties are well over 500, and we have only six officers left. Major Furley, Major Soames, Capt. Brodie, Lieuts. Lambert, Marsh, Phillimore, Jelf and Bainbridge and poor Kit-all killed, and Birkett badly wounded. I cannot write properly how terribly upset we all are and how irreparable is the loss. In Kit I have lost my very dearest friend; there is nothing that I would not have done for him. He was the heart and soul of everything in the battalion, and we shall never get his like again as an officer and as a pal. Unfortunately I was unable to be with him and the company, as I badly sprained my ankle reconnoitering the ‘position’ the day before, and I could not walk without great pain. I feel I would have given anything to have been with them, but certainly would have been amongst the fallen. On hearing the news I hobbled up to the firing line to do what I could and help to reorganize the battalion. I recovered Kit’s body…….He said his only disappointment had been over the Staff job, and it was the irony of fate that he should yesterday morning got a letter saying that it was to come off after all. There are only 20 of C Coy who followed Kit here to-day to answer the roll. The company I take over is only 50 strong. They followed him splendidly; they all loved him, and would have gone anywhere or done anything for him. Every wounded man I saw first asked me how the Captain got on. We are bringing all the officers down to-night (Thursday 14th) and are burying them in Vermelles British Cemetery.” Regretably it has not been possible to positively identify the officer who wrote the above letter, but suspect that it might have been Captain Charles Henry Cardozo, who also served in the 8th Battalion of the regiment and fortunately survived the Great War. Due to his prowess as a noted horseman, Christopher would not have been out of place had he enlisted in a cavalry regiment, he had hunted with the East Kent Foxhounds and the Mid Kent Staghounds, and was a member of the regimental Polo Team whilst stationed at Hong Kong. Christopher’s brother is also commemorated at Dover, Kent, being numbered amongst the 20 casualties of the Second Boer War who are commemorated on a memorial plaque in St. Mary the Virgin parish church. Born in August 1874, Lieutenant Francis Coventry Dudfield Davidson, Royal Lancaster Regiment was wounded on the Tugela River, KwaZulu, Natal Province, South Africa and succumbed to his wounds on 23 February 1900. Aged 25. Both of the Davidson brothers had been Liverymen of the Saddlers Company, City of London. Another brother, Lieutenant Colonel Hugh Alan Davidson, DSO & Bar, served in and survived the Great War and retired from the army May 1920.

Commemorated on the Menin Gate (Ypres) Ieper, West-Vlaanderen, Belgium. Panel 36.
Hubert is also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.

As has been the case with several (possibly hundreds) of casualties researched over the years, it would appear that Hubert falls into the category of ‘official’ date of death not exactly matching other data. As an officer in his battalion Hubert disembarked at La Havre, France from the SS Lake Michigan on 15 January 1915, after which his battalion made several moves towards Belgium, and on 2 May 1915 took over trenches at Verlorenhoek, West-Vlaanderen, Belgium where it remained until being relieved during the night of 7 May 1915 and going to nearby Ypres, the following day moving into trenches at Frenzenberg from where an assault on the enemy was launched at 2000 hours.
York and Lancaster Regiment history of the Great War period was written by Colonel H.
C. Wylly who wrote of the above action fought by the 1st Battalion thus, “The enemy position was reached and some few men gallant men even entered it, but were immediately bayonetted.” Only one officer in the battalion was not a casualty of some category by the end of the day on 8 May 1915, including ‘apparently’ 5 killed, however only the Commanding Officer 45 year old Frederick E.B. Isherwood is shown as died on that date by the CWGC. In view of the possible error it seemed prudent to note same.

EDWARDS, FREDERICK WILLIAM. Artificer Engineer, 268996.

Buried Sheerness, (Isle of Sheppey) Cemetery. Grave Ref: V. 221.

Died 3 May 17.
Enlisted Hornsey, Middlesex. Resided Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Arras Memorial, Pas de Calais, France. Bay 7.
Former regimental number 6318, same rank and regiment. It is fairly certain that the spelling of Thomas’s surname by the CWGC (ERREY) is erroneous as all other data checked shows it spelt as on the war memorial, it is also the same spelling on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.

FAIRWEATHER, WILLIAM HENRY. Stoker 1st Class, K/6889.
Royal Navy. H.M.S. “Aboukir.”
Born Dover, Kent 9 November 1890.
Son of William Henry and Catherine Julia Fairweather of Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Chatham Naval Memorial. Panel 5, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent. Unfortunately on the church war memorial he is shown with his initials reversed. At the time of the 1901 census the Fairweather family resided at 1 Flying Horse Lane, Dover, Kent. In addition to William junior his parents also had five other children at home, William senior a 46 year old native of Marylebone, London was an Engine Driver on the railways and Head of the house. Early in the Great War the Royal Navy maintained a patrol of old Cressy class armoured cruisers which was called ‘Cruiser Force C’ in an area of the North Sea known as the Broad Fourteens. On 16 July 1914 the German submarine U-9 became the first submarine in history to reload torpedoes whilst still submerged, and on 22 September 1914 the same submarine under the command of Commander Otto Weddigen who had commanded the U-9 since 1 August 1914, sighted H.M.S.Cressy, H.M.S.Aboukir and H.M.S.Hogue all steaming NNE at 10 knots without zigzagging, although the patrols were supposed to maintain a speed of 12 to13 knots and zigzag, the old cruisers were unable to maintain that speed and the zigzagging order was widely ignored mainly due to the fact that there had been no enemy submarines sighted in that area of the North Sea at that stage of the war. Otto Weddigen and his crew later the same day put into practice under wartime conditions what they had perfected in peace, and were able to reload beneath the waves. Otto Weddigen maneuvered the U-9 to attack the three cruisers, and at approximately 0625 hours fired a single torpedo at H.M.S. Aboukir which stuck her on her port side. Aboukir rapidly suffered heavy flooding and despite counter flooding developed a 20 degree list and lost engine power. It was soon clear that she was a lost cause and Captain Drummond ordered her to be abandoned, although only one boat had survived the attack so most crew had to jump into the sea. At first Captain Drummond thought that H.M.S. Aboukir had been mined and signaled the other two cruisers to close and assist with the rescue of his crew, but he soon realised that it was a torpedo attack and ordered the other cruisers away, but too late. As H.M.S. Aboukir rolled over and sank only half an hour after being attacked, Otto Weddigen fired two torpedoes at H.M.S. Hogue that hit her amidships and rapidly flooded her engine room. Captain Nicholson of H.M.S. Hogue had stopped his ship to lower boats to rescue the crew of H.M.S. Aboukir, thinking that as he was the other side of Aboukir from the enemy submarine he would be safe. Unfortunately the U-9 had managed to maneuver around H.M.S. Aboukir and attacked H.M.S. Hogue from a range of about only 300 yards, and it only took H.M.S. Hogue ten minutes to sink as the U-9 headed for H.M.S. Cressy which was commanded by Captain Johnson. H.M.S. Cressy had also stopped to lower boats but quickly got underway on sighting a submarine’s periscope. At about 0720 hours Otto Weddigen fired two torpedoes, one of which just missed but the other hit H.M.S. Cressy on her starboard side. The damage to H.M.S. Cressy was not fatal but the U-9 then turned round and fired her last torpedo as a coup de grace which hit Cressy sinking her within a quarter of an hour. Survivors of the disaster were picked up by several nearby merchant ships including the Dutch Flora and Titan and the British trawlers JGC and Corainder before the Harwich force of light cruisers and destroyers arrived. Flora returned to Holland with 286 rescued crew who were quickly returned to Britain, even though the neutral Dutch should have interned them. In all 837 men were rescued but 1459 died, many of whom were reservists or cadets. On 18 March 1915 the German submarine U-29 was rammed and sunk by H.M.S. Dreadnought in the Pentland Firth, all 32 submariners onboard perished including Otto Weddigen who had been in command since 16 February 1915.

FENNEll, JOHN THOMAS. 737, Chief Petty Officer (Pensioner). Royal Navy. (RFR/CH/A/907). H.M.S. “Aboukir.”
Died 22 September 1914. Aged 46.
Born Dover, Kent 17 October 1867.
Son of John Benjamin and Charlotte Fennell of Dover; Kent.
Husband of Eleanor Mary Fennell of 6, Dunnett Road, Cheriton, Folkestone, Kent.
Commemorated on the Chatham Naval Memorial, Panel 1, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
John had an impressive record of naval service comprised of 23 years in the Royal Navy followed by 10 years in the Royal Fleet Reserve.
On the 1881 census his family as under were residing at Cross Street, Farnborough, Hampshire, at which time his father was employed as a Grocers Warehouseman.
Early in the Great War the Royal Navy maintained a patrol of old Cressy class armoured cruisers which was called ‘Cruiser Force C’ in an area of the North Sea known as the Broad Fourteens. HANDFORD, DOUGLAS FREDERICK. Battery Sergeant Major, 1601. 7th Battery, 3rd A.F.A. Brigade, Australian Field Artillery.
Born Dover, Kent. Enlisted Drillham, Queensland, Australia.
Son of Mrs. Ellen Amelia Handford and the late Frederick John Handford.
Brother of Mrs Nellie Medhurst 52, Richmond Road, Gillingham, Kent.
Also commemorated on Panel 12 of the Australian National War Memorial, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
Douglas was educated in Dover, Kent and on leaving had enlisted as Boy Soldier in the Royal Garrison Artillery, and his service as a boy had included time spent in post at Dover Castle. On completion of his boys’ service, Douglas was posted to the Royal Horse Artillery with which he served for 12 years including time spent in the Second Boer War 1899-1902. The former Portuguese island of St. Helena to this day still evokes sad stories amongst many South Africans about the thousands who spent their exile there during the Second Boer War, in 1900 the Boer General Piet Cronje and his wife were amongst those sent there, and amongst the garrison staff guarding the Boer prisoners was Douglas Handford. On his discharge from the army “with splendid character,” Douglas went straight to Australia and was gainfully employed as an officer at Drillham, Queensland, Railway Station, but the lure back to the military was probably proving too much for him. He was about to leave his railway employment to take up a military instructors post at Brisbane, when war was declared, instead of taking up the above post he enlisted as a Gunner in the Australian Field Artillery. No doubt due to his past experiences and former years of service he was very quickly promoted to a Battery Sergeant Major in the 3rd Australian Field Artillery Brigade.

HARBIRD, H.R. It would seem likely that this man was commemorated on the war memorial with the wrong initials. The CWGC record a sole casualty for either of the world wars with the surname, which also matches SDGW. The MIC entries show only 9 soldiers with the surname, and checking the Royal Navy data revealed only one sailor.

48 Squadron, Royal Flying Corps.
Died 16 February 1918.
Born Dover, Kent.
Also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
At 1345 hours on 16 February 1918 the Bristol F.2b aircraft of Ernest and his Observer 22 year old Lieutenant George Wheeler Croft from Lincolnshire, was shot down by the 26 year old German ‘ace’ Hauptmann, Wilhelm “Willi” Reinhard who at the time was the Commanding Officer of Jasta 6. Ernest and George were shot down above Fayet near St. Quentin on the Somme and became the eight of Wilhelm Reinhard’s twenty victories.
Before becoming aircrew, Ernest had been a Royal Flying Corps, Air Mechanic 2nd Class which is as shown on his MIC entry. A native of Düsseldorf, Germany Wilhelm Reinhard lost his life on 3 July 1918 at Adlersdorf, near Berlin when he took up a Zeppelin-Lindau D.I, for a test flight, he was killed when a strut broke and the top wing of the aircraft collapsed. Twentieth century history, notably the Second World War and events leading up to it would probably have been different had the strut broke only minutes earlier, when a different ‘ace’ pilot had been testing the aircraft, he being Oberleutnant Hermann Wilhelm Göring.

Thomas’s ship was a 1,250 tons Aubrietia Flower Class convoy sloop which was built by Blyth Ship Builders to replicate (as much as possible) a merchant ship, and was in use as a minelayer and ‘Q-ship.’ On 22 March 1918 in the North Sea, off the Orkney Islands she was carrying out buoying operations in the newly laid Northern Barrage between Scotland and Norway which was aimed at interrupting the passage of German submarines into the North Atlantic. It is thought that she was blown up and sunk by one of the barrage mines, but an element of doubt regarding her loss remains however, as it was suggested that in fact she was torpedoed.

At the time of the 1901 census, a 14 year old Temple Ewell native John Mills who was possibly the above casualty resided with his parents George and Mary Mills and his younger sister Jane, at Woodville Hall, Temple Ewell, Dover where it would seem likely that his father was employed as a Coachman.

Died 27 June 1916.
Born Lewisham, Kent. Enlisted Woolwich, Kent. Resided Sydenham, Kent.
Husband of F. Morris of 59, Porthcawe Road, Lower Sydenham, London.
When taking into account Ernest’s rank, regimental number and battalion it would probably be correct to assume that he was on the Permanent Staff, possibly as an instructor at the Citadel, Western Heights, Dover, and also that he died whilst a patient at the Military Hospital. In view of the details above as extracted from SDGW re places of birth, enlistment and residence, it therefore came as something of a surprise to see that Ernest is commemorated on St. Mary the Virgin parish church war memorial Dover, Kent, which possibly is indicative of his place of residence having been Dover, Kent as opposed to Sydenham, Kent where his widow resided following his demise. He is also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.

OBREE, JOHN. Mate (Hired).
H.M. Dockyard, Portsmouth. H.M. Dredger “St. Dunstan.”
Died 23 September 1917.
John’s ship was an old bucket dredger built by Lobnitz and Co, Renfrew, Scotland in 1894. She was in use as a mine sweeper and was being accompanied by two escort trawlers the Fort Albert and Horatio whilst en route to Pembroke from Portsmouth, when she hit a mine and sank on 23 September 1917 with the loss of two lives, about one and one half miles south west of Pollock Rock off Abbotsbury, Lyme Bay, Dorset. The mine which sank the ship had been laid by the German minelaying submarine UC-21 commanded by Werner von Zerboni di Sposetti, who died the following week along with the other 26 members of his crew on 30 September 1917. Having departed from Zeebrugge for minelaying operations in the English Channel, the actual reason for the loss of the UC-21 is unknown. H.M.S St. Dunstan was amongst 95 vessels sunk by the submarine between 15 September 1916 and when she was lost.

OSBORNE, A E. No clear trace. It would seem likely that the most feasible explanation for not being able to trace this casualty is that he died of war relate injury/s post 1921, it being the cut-off year for Great War commemorations by the then Imperial War Graves Commission, and prior to the gathering of names for inclusion on both the Dover, Kent civic war memorial and St. Mary the Virgin parish church war memorial, as he or she is commemorated on both.

PALMER, THOMAS WILLIAM. Rifleman, S/7967.

William a 33 year old native of Sevenoaks, Kent was employed as a Railway Porter and was the Head of the house.

PARKER, ALFRED GEORGE. Private, 2975.
45th Battalion, Australian Infantry, A.I.F.
Killed in action Albert, Somme, France 5 April 1918. Aged 25.
Born Poplar, East London. Enlisted Dubbo, New South Wales, Australia.
Normally resided at Annandale, Sydney, New South Wales, Son of Alfred James Parker, Dolphin Inn, Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Villers-Bretonneux Memorial, Somme, France, and the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
After leaving Dover, Kent National School, Alfred was employed as a Ships Steward before emigrated to Australia aged 18 where he worked as a Labourer. He enlisted in the 45th (New South Wales) Battalion, Australian Infantry, Australia Imperial Force on 14 June 1916, and after training sailed for Europe onboard the 10,624 ton SS Port Nicholson from Sydney on 8 November 1916. SS Port Nicholson which was used as an Australian troop transporter was formerly the SS Makarini owned by G.D.Tyser & Co, (London); she was mined and sunk approximately 15 nautical miles off Dunkirk on 15 January 1917. The Australian 4th Division of which Alfred’s battalion was a part was initially stationed on the Suez Canal, Egypt. In June 1916 it moved to France, taking over part of the sector near Armentieres, Nord. Its stay there was brief and soon it was accompanying the First and Second Divisions to the Somme sector. In August 1916 it relieved the Second Division on the Pozieres Heights and repulsed a major German counterattack. It then drove north to the outskirts of Mouquet Farm. A second tour of the Somme at Mouquet Farm followed in September and a third at Flers in October. On 11 April 1917 the Fourth Division assaulted the Hindenburg Line in the First Battle of Bullecourt, but the battle was a disaster and 1170 Australian prisoners were taken by the Germans. In June it participated in the Battle of Messines, and in September it participated in the Battle of Polygon Wood. In March 1918 the Fourth Division was rushed to the Somme region to stem the German Offensive. There it repulsed the advancing Germans in hard fought battles at Hebuterne and Dernancourt. In April its 13th Infantry Brigade was involved in the counterattack at Villers-Bretonneux. The Fourth Division went on to fight in the Battle of Hamel, Battle of Epehy (with distinction), Battle of Amiens and the Hindenburg Line, finally reaching the town of Bellenglise.

PARSONS, RAYMOND STRICKER. R.N. Lieutenant Commander.
Royal Navy. Hood Battalion, Royal Naval Division.
Died 4 June 1916. Aged 35.
Born Dover, Kent 6 December 1880.
Son of Doctor Charles Parsons of 13, Park Road, Tunbridge Wells, Kent.
Brother of Mr H.B Parsons of Manor House, Boughton Aluph, Ashford, Kent.
Commemorated on the Helles Memorial, Turkey. Panel 1, and the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.

Raymond came from a Dover family of brothers that paid a high price whilst serving in the armed forces during both the Great War and the Second Boer War. Lieutenant Francis Newton Parsons VC, of the 1st Battalion, Essex Regiment was killed in action on 11 March 1900 during the Battle of Driefontein, South Africa less than a month after going to the aid of one of his men a Private Ferguson under fire, for which he was subsequently awarded the Victoria Cross. (For more comprehensive details see VC section on this website). Dr Constanacy Charles Parsons MRCS, LRCP died in South Africa on 3 December 1900 whilst attached to the 21st Army Field Hospital. Both brothers are commemorated on the Dover Boer War Memorial in St. Mary the Virgin, Cannon Street, Dover. Lieutenant Commander Guy Fowell Parsons RN of H.M.S. Nigella died 6 March 1919. Another brother Lieutenant Commander Godfrey Crail Parsons RN also served and fortunately survived the Great War. At the time of the 1881 census the Parsons family resided at 2 St. James Street, Dover, Kent.

195th Heavy Battery, Royal Garrison Artillery.
Died 19 August 1918.
Born and enlisted Dover, Kent.
Also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
SDGW records Robert’s death as occurring on 19 August 1916. In view of his place of burial the later date is probably correct as the 195th Heavy Battery, Royal Garrison Artillery were part of the Egyptian Expeditionary Force 1917-1918 attached to ‘Chaytor’s Force’ commanded by Major General Sir Edward Chaytor. Although the cemetery where Robert is buried was not commenced until after the capture of Jerusalem in December 1917, initially with 270 burials, but casualties were re-interred later in the cemetery from the battlefields and smaller cemeteries in the neighbourhood.

PRIEST, ALFRED. Rifleman, 9452.

RAYBROOK, E.A. Is probably the following Dover casualty:-
RAYBROOK, ERNEST. Stoker 1st Class, 305485.
Royal Navy. H.M.S. “Russell.”
Died 28 April 1918. Aged 33.
Born Dover, Kent 22 August 1884.
Buried Malta (Capuccini) Naval Cemetery. Grave Ref: Protestant 316.
Also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
The grave location within the cemetery is somewhat apt as at his enlistment Ernest stated his religious denomination as C of E, and gave his civilian occupation as a Builders Labourer. H.M.S. Russell a 14,000 Duncan class battleship was mined off the coast of Malta the day before Ernest died, it would appear that he succumbed to his injuries the day after the explosion and was amongst in excess of 100 of the ships company who died.

Died 17 September 1918. Aged 33.

Edward is also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
ROBERTS, A H. As commemorated on both the Dover, Kent civic war memorial and St, Mary the Virgin parish church war memorial Dover, Kent, was:-

ROBERTS, ARTHUR BERTRAM HOWARD. MM. Private, L/8935.

Son of Arthur John Howard Roberts, and the late Edith Roberts.
Commemorated on the Cambrai Memorial, Nord, France. Panel 3 and St. Mary the Virgin parish church war memorial Dover, Kent.
Arthur was one of three brothers who served during the Great War; their father was Q.M.S., A.J.H. Roberts, 1st Battalion, The Buffs (East Kent Regiment). As on both the Dover war memorials, Arthur is also erroneously recorded on The Buffs (East Kent Regiment) Great War deaths Nominal Roll, and on the record of the regiments’ recipients of the Military Medal devoid of his last initial.

SAMWAYS, ALBERT HENRY. Stoker 1st Class, K/15010.
Royal Navy. H.M.S. “Invincible.”
Born Wareham, Dorset 18 March 1890.
Son of Mr. and Mrs. Samways of Wareham, Dorset.
Husband of Alice Stockney (formerly Samways) of 67, Bulwark Street, Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Portsmouth Naval Memorial. Panel 19. Also commemorated on Wareham, Dorset civic war memorial. Face 4, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent. Albert lost his life along with 1,015 others aboard the 20,135 ton battlecruiser H.M.S. Invincible, her Captain Arthur Lindsay Cay RN was amongst those lost and is also commemorated on the Dover, Kent civic war memorial. Various commentators and authors have made similar observations and comments regarding the loss of Albert’s ship describing the salvos fired by the German Kaiserliche Marine battlecruiser’s SMS Derfflinger and SMS Lützow as being ‘lucky shots.’ Before she exploded H.M.S. Invincible had inflicted serious damaged on the 30,700 ton SMS Lützow to such an extent that she was scuttled, but not before firing a salvo at her attacker in unison with SMS Derfflinger. Albert’s ship received a direct hit from SMS Lützow to “Q” gun-turret which blew part of it, including the roof over the side of the ship; another struck her below the water-line which exploded in her magazine which broke the ship in two. Only 6 are recorded as having survived the loss of H.M.S. Invincible on 31 May 1916.

SAUNDERS, GEORGE. Private, 562.

Born 8 May 1915.
Born and enlisted Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Menin Gate, (Ypres) Ieper, West-Vlaanderen, Belgium. Panel 36 or 55, and on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
Probably John is the 12 year old boy shown as John B Saunders on the 1901 census, at which time he was residing with his 46 year old widowed mother Fanny Saunders at St.
Georges Cottage, 27 Caroline Place, Dover, Kent. In addition to John, his mother had two other children and was a Dressmaker.

SAYER, JAMES BENJAMIN. Private, 228809.

Buried Queant Communal Cemetery British Extension, Pas de Calais, France.
Grave Ref: D. 19. James is also commemorated on the civic war memorial, Dover, Kent, and on page 497 of the Canadian First World War Book of Remembrance. Before immigrating to Canada, where he was employed as a Chauffer, James had served for a 3 year term in the 4th Battalion, (Territorial Force) The Buffs (East Kent Regiment), probably in “H” Company which was based at Dover. In Canada James continued his part-time military commitments and served in a Militia unit of the 5th Regiment, Royal Highlanders of Canada.

SCOTT, A. No clear trace. Probably the casualty commemorated on St. Mary’s, Kent parish church war memorial, who is also commemorated on the Dover, Kent civic war memorial, had a death which was Great War related occurring between 1921 and before the final compilation of the names of the dead for inclusion on the war memorial. It would of course explain the reason for being unable to ascertain any commemoration details via the CWGC website.

SCOTT, D. No clear trace. Please see above which also applies to this casualty.

SEDGWICK, EDWARD. Corporal, 358040.
47th Siege Battery, Royal Garrison Artillery.
Died 23 April 1919.
Also commemorated on St. Mary the Virgin parish church war memorial Dover, Kent.

SEDGWICK, EDWARD. Corporal, 358040.
47th Siege Battery, Royal Garrison Artillery.
Died 23 April 1919.
Probably Walter Sedgwick who shares the grave was a brother; both are also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.

SEDGWICK, F. The only ‘Dover’ match for this casualty is a FREDERICK SEDGWICK, Petty Officer Stoker, 289224 who is commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent, but it might be due to human error years ago why another man who is not commemorated was revealed during the research period for another F Sedgwick. Probably he is in fact the other “F” who was simply commemorated with the wrong initial, he being:-

SHARMAN, HARRY. Serjeant, 12856. 39th Siege Battery, Royal Garrison Artillery. Died 21 July 1916. Aged 38. Born and resided Colchester, Essex. Enlisted Warley, Essex. Husband of Emma Annie Sharman of 57, Oswald Road, Buckland, Dover, Kent. Buried Heilly Station Cemetery, Mericourt-L’Abbe, Somme, France. Grave Ref: II. C. 13. Also commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent. In view of SDGW details re place of and residence, probably Harry’s is the Sharman family that are shown on the 1881 census residing at The Heath, Weeley, Essex which is equidistant of Colchester and Clacton on Sea, Essex:-

SIDDERS, HARRY FREDERICK. Driver, 58194.
56th Battery, Royal Field Artillery.

Buried Bucquoy Communal Cemetery Extension, Pas de Calais, France.
Grave Ref: B. 18.
Formerly 8518, Royal Berkshire Regiment.
Augustus is probably the casualty commemorated on the civic war memorial Dover, Kent simply as A. SMITH.

SMITH, C It has not been possible so far to obtain a good ‘Dover’ match for this casualty, but it seemed prudent to add that the following family that was found whilst accessing the 1901 census, as the Charles entered on it might be the casualty commemorated on both the civic war memorial and St. Mary’s parish church war memorial Dover, Kent.

Harry TERRY. Aged 5. Born Dover, Kent.
George A. TERRY. Aged 11 months. Born Dover, Kent.

Early in the Great War the Royal Navy maintained a patrol of old Cressy class armoured cruisers which was called ‘Cruiser Force C’ in an area of the North Sea known as the Broad Fourteens. On 16 July 1914 the German submarine U-9 became the first submarine in history to reload torpedoes whilst still submerged, and on 22 September 1914 the same submarine under the command of Commander Otto Weddigen who had commanded the U-9 since 1 August 1914, sighted H.M.S.Cressy, H.M.S.Aboukir and H.M.S.Hogue all steaming NNE at 10 knots without zigzagging, although the patrols were supposed to maintain a speed of 12 to13 knots and zigzag, the old cruisers were unable to maintain that speed and the zigzagging order was widely ignored mainly due to the fact that there had been no enemy submarines sighted in that area of the North Sea at that stage of the war. Otto Weddigen and his crew later the same day put into practice under wartime conditions what they had perfected in peace, and were able to reload beneath the waves.
Otto Weddigen maneuvered the U-9 to attack the three cruisers, and at approximately 0625 hours fired a single torpedo at H.M.S.Aboukir which stuck her on her port side.
Aboukir rapidly suffered heavy flooding and despite counter flooding developed a 20 degree list and lost engine power. It was soon clear that she was a lost cause and Captain Drummond ordered her to be abandoned, although only one boat had survived the attack so most crew had to jump into the sea. At first Captain Drummond thought that H.M.S.Aboukir had been mined and signaled the other two cruisers to close and assist with the rescue of his crew, but he soon realised that it was a torpedo attack and ordered the other cruisers away, but too late. As H.M.S.Aboukir rolled over and sank only half an hour after being attacked, Otto Weddigen fired two torpedoes at H.M.S. Hogue that hit her amidships and rapidly flooded her engine room. Captain Nicholson of H.M.S. Hogue had stopped his ship to lower boats to rescue the crew of H.M.S.Aboukir, thinking that as he was the other side of Aboukir from the enemy submarine he would be safe.
Unfortunately the U-9 had managed to maneuver around H.M.S.Aboukir and attacked H.M.S.Hogue from a range of about only 300 yards, and it only took H.M.S.Hogue ten minutes to sink as the U-9 headed for H.M.S.Cressy which was commanded by Captain Johnson. H.M.S.Cressy had also stopped to lower boats but quickly got underway on sighting a submarine’s periscope. At about 0720hours Otto Weddigen fired two torpedoes, one of which just missed but the other hit H.M.S.Cressy on her starboard side.
The damage to H.M.S.Cressy was not fatal but the U-9 then turned round and fired her last torpedo as a coup de grace which hit Cressy sinking her within a quarter of an hour. Survivors of the disaster were picked up by several nearby merchant ships including the Dutch Flora and Titan and the British trawlers JGC and Corainder before the Harwich force of light cruisers and destroyers arrived. Flora returned to Holland with 286 rescued crew who were quickly returned to Britain, even though the neutral Dutch should have interned them. In all 837 men were rescued but 1459 died, many of whom were reservists or cadets. On 18 March 1915 the German submarine U-29 was rammed and sunk by H.M.S. Dreadnought in the Pentland Firth, all 32 submariners onboard perished including Otto Weddigen who had been in command since 16 February 1915.

Born Dover, Kent 17 October 1898.
Son of George Edward and Louisa Thompson of 30, Dickson Road, Tower Hamlets, Dover, Kent.
Commemorated on the Chatham Naval Memorial. Panel 10, and the civic war memorial Dover, Kent.
Frederick was one of about fifty boys straight out of the Royal Navy boys training shore base at H.M.S. Ganges, Shotley, Suffolk, who were part of the crew of 261 onboard H.M.S. Clan McNaughton when she was lost with all hands in storms after foundering off the north coast of Ireland on the day that he died. H.M.S. Clan McNaughton had been in radio contact at about 0600 hours on the morning of her loss at which time the Radio Officer had reported terrible prevailing weather conditions. Nothing more was ever heard again of Frederick’s ship although some floating wreckage was found a fortnight later in her last known approximate position, despite which none of it could actually be identified as having come from her. It was later presumed that she had been mined, but due to the approximate area of her sinking later post war investigations thought that unlikely although possible.

At the time of the 1881 census the Tuker family was residing at 11 Widred Road, Charlton, Dover, Kent:-
Laura K. TUCKER. Aged 5. Born Dover, Kent.
Horace B. TUCKER. Aged 11 months. Born Dover, Kent.
Completed in June 1904, Horace’s 13,432 ton Swiftsure class battleship was something of an oddity as she had not originally been built to Admiralty specifications. Originally designed by Sir Edward Reed and built by Sir William Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., at Elswick and Walker, on the Tyne, for the Chilean Navy, but owing to financial problems the ship was put up for sale before being completed. H.M.S. Swiftsure and her sister ship H.M.S. Triumph were purchased by the British government in December 1903 mainly to prevent their possible sale to Russia. With a crew of 729 the design of the ships emphasized speed and a heavy secondary armament at the expense of protection and main armament. During the Great War H.M.S. Swiftsure served early on as a Flagship in the East Indies Squadron, in November 1914 escorted Indian Convoy, and in December 1914 was detached to the Suez Egypt operational area. In February 1915 she joined the Dardanelles Squadron, and on 2 March 1915 took part in the bombardments of the forts. Between the 5 and 9 March 1915 she was engaged during the attacks on the forts at Smyrna. From 18 March 1915 onwards H.M.S. Swiftsure supported landings at Helles. On 18 September 1915 she was unsuccessfully attacked by German submarine thought to be the U-21 which was commanded by Otto Hersing. Another bombardment was carried out by the late Horace Tucker’s ship on 18 January 1916 when she shelled the Bulgarian held Greek port of Dedeagatch. In February 1916 she was attached to the 9th Cruiser Squadron in the Atlantic, but the next year on 11 April 1917 H.M.S. Swiftsure was paid off at Chatham to release her crew. From the middle of 1917 until February 1918 she was used as an accommodation ship, and in the Autumn of 1918 she was prepared for use as a block ship but not put into use as same prior to the Armistice. In 1920 H.M.S. Swiftsure was sold for scrap, probably complete with the Captains marble bath which was installed as part of her original Chilean Navy specification.

After duty at the Dardanelles, she was sent to the South Atlantic in September 1914 to join the squadron of Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock KCVO, CB. However she was later ordered to join Rear Admiral Archibald P Stoddart’s squadron on the east coast of South America (before she managed to join with Cradock), a decision of which Cradock was unaware. Recalled to home waters, she became the flagship of Rear Admiral Sir Robert. K Arbuthnot’s First Cruiser Squadron. At the Battle of Jutland in 1916 she led her squadron ahead of the battle fleet when she became engaged with the light scouting forces of the German High Seas Fleet. She damaged and brought to a stop SMS Wiesbaden but as she closed to finish off the crippled cruiser, she then came within the range of the German battle fleet.
