

Halstead

Unfortunately due to the constraints of time, it has not yet been possible to transcribe the Halstead war memorial plaques, which are located in the parish church of St. Margaret's, Church Road, Halstead, Sevenoaks. We are very much indebted to Susan F. who is the most prolific contributor of the west Kent area photographs for inclusion on this site, for providing the Halstead war memorial plaques photographs which are shown here. As opposed to waiting until the transcriptions and additional information has been completed, it seemed sensible to add Susan's photographs now, as by doing so, it will of course at least allow people to view the names of all the casualties who are commemorated on the memorial plaques. Although in need of more in-depth research, initial basic checking of various data sources would tent to indicate that not all of the Halstead natives and/or residents have in fact been commemorated on the war memorial plaques. When the transcriptions are eventually added, any or all of those casualties who are found to be not named on the plaques will also be added on this website.
